POLICE RADIO OFF AIR EIGHT HOURS DAILY

GRASS VALLEY: KAPI, short wave radio station operated in the California Highway Patrol station in Hills Flat has gone on 16 hour schedule daily instead of the 24 hour service that has been given for several years.

Reason for the change is that contributions from the county and the cities of Grass Valley and Nevada City, are not sufficient to maintain the station on a 24 hour basis. Grass Valley contributes $85, Nevada City $50 and the county $105 per month, a total of $240.

Powell stated that voting will begin on June 3rd and votes will be till midnight June 26th.

MINISTER TELLS ROTARY OF TRAIL BLAZING PARSON

GRASS VALLEY: Dr. L. L. Loofbourow, Methodist minister of Southern California, in an address before the Grass Valley Rotary Club gave an interesting sketch of the noted California trail blazer, Jebediah Smith.

Rev. Jesse R. Rudkin, program chairman, introduced the speaker, who prefaced his story of the dauntless Smith, blazing the trackless forest and deserts of California with his Bible and long rifle on his back, by declaring that the early day parsons traveling from settlement to settlement were greatly responsible for the laying of cornerstones of civilization in the west.

Dr. Loofbourow said that the first services of a religious character were held in Grass Valley on September 23, 1849. Rev. Isaac Owens erected his own altar by thrusting his walking stick in the ground and hanging his hat on it. Grass became one of loop visited by circuit riding, saddle bag preachers who visited Marysville, Grass Valley, Neevada City, North San Juan, You Bet and scores of gold mining camps throughout Northern California.

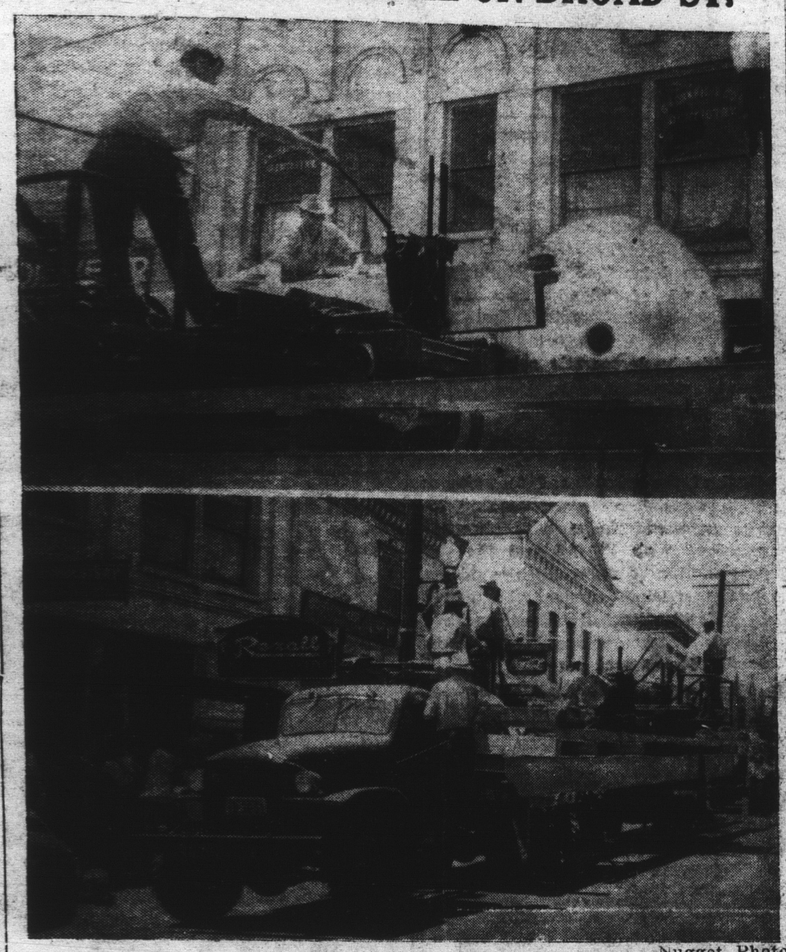
ALMQUIST DEMONSTRATES NEW PORTABLE SAWMILL ON BROAD ST.



Nugget Photo

NEVADA CITY: In the top picture, the operator is of the portable sawmill so that the 60inch saw can slice through the wood. Almquist demonstrated his remarkable mill Monday morning at 11:30 so that local citizens had front seats at the "world premiere" of this first of its kind lumbering device.

In the picture below, the complete rig is shown. In the foreground is the 2½ ton GMC 6-wheel drive truck, the saw mill mounted upon it. Over the cab of the truck can be seen the 200 horsepower Cummins Diesel power unit. At the extreme right is visible the portable electric power unit, by which edger and blower are powered.

Almquist's unique mill is 52 feet long overall. It's built on two 18 inch I beams that form a base frame and shield all V-belt drives in the power transmission.

This arrangement makes it possible to carry on operations on flat foundation or even a railroad flat car.

Another feature is a ten inch ball joint where the mill is attached to the truck. This makes possible transportation on rugged mountain trails without twisting the steel frame.

The edger is a 8-inch three-saw mounted in direct line with the main saw. The edger's line rolls carry lumber and slab right through between the rollers, which are raised by hydraulic power to permit up to 13 inches clearance.

WATER IN STREAMS TOO LOW FOR GOOD FISHING ON OPENING DAY

NEVADA CITY: Fishing will be just fair in Nevada County, Game Warden Earl Hiscox declared yesterday, when the season opens on Memorial Day, a week from today.

Hiscox declared there are plenty of fish but that the water as contrasted with almost universally high water of opening day on May 1st in other years, is far too low for good fishing. In Deer Creek which flows through Nevada City there is about two thirds of the normal volume of water. On the western slopes of Grouse Ridge there is not even a visible patch of snow, which usually shows snow until June 1.

Two or three fishermen, picked up by the game waden for fishing out of season, he reports, have been using black gnats and black ant flies with some success. He thinks dark colored flies will probably produce good results, but bait may still prove a better lure.

So far as streams are concerned he thinks there is not much choice. All streams flowing in the South Yuba river should afford some sport even though low water is a handicap to the fisherman who seeks a limit.

Due to the hot weather the game warden declares that lake fishing will probably be very poor on opening day. He states that during hot spells the trout congregate in the colder water in the low spots on the lake bottom and do not respond readily to the usual lures. It has been unseasonably hot here for several days with temperatures ranging up to 90 degrees. If this continues until opening day, May 30th, Hiscox predicts few fish will be taken in the lakes.

Due to early melting of the snow all lakes are acsessible by roads and trails.

ACCUSED OF MANSLAUGHTER, DWIGHT LEWIS JUMPS $2500 BAIL

NEVADA CITY: Sheriff Richard W. Hoskins yesterday reported that Dwight Lewis, 25, Lodi musician accused of involuntary manslaughter had jumped bail of $2500. The sheriff is looking for him.

At the inquest a coroner's jury found that Leighton had come to his death by reason of Lewis' driving He was charged with involuntary manslaughter. At the time of the accident Lewis was accompanied by Mrs. Edith Hay of Lodi. Neither Mrs. Hay nor Lewis were injured. Medical evidence was introduced at the inquest indicating that Lewis had been drinking.

With him in the car, were Miss Jerry Maffucci and Miss Hilda Brooks both of the California Inn, Grass Valley. The two girls suffered cuts and bruises but were not seriously injured. Jack Bowden, fouth member of the party, was shaken up but uninjured. He is employed as a sign painter at 117½ Broad Street, Nevada City.

Lorris L. Richards, highway patrolman reports the car, registered to George C. Boles of Nevada City, was completely wrecked. It turned over several times going down the 40 foot embankment and landed on its top. Renard attributed the accident to faulty brakes.

CHAMBER SEEKS SETTLEMENT OF LABOR DISPUTE; FOURTH PLANS SPEEDING UP DESPITE LULL

STINSON OUTLINES CRYSTALLIZED PLANS FOR THE GREAT CELEBRATION; EXCELLENT SYSTEM OF FINANCING IS DETAILED

GRASS VALLEY: O. P. Steele reported to the regular Wednesday meeting of the Chamber of Commerce that his seven man labor relations commtitee was still engaged in trying to solve the long-standing Valley Grill labor dispute. The committee is seeking he said, submission of the dispute to an arbitration board headed by a federal conciliator.

Members of the committee are Steele, Dr. Daniel L. Hirsch, (Chamber of Commerce president), Dr. Harry March, Downey Charles Clinch, Benjamin Wadlow, Louis Hartmann and Jerry Brust.

William H. Stinson, chairman of the Fourth of July Frontier Days Celebration Committee, reported that despite a temporary lull in pre-Fourth enthusiasm, preparations for events were speeding up.

More plans for the mammoth 4-day entertainment have crystallized. Now scheduled are two pageantry shows, a 4-day golf tournament, the great parade, a frontier show, western days rodeo, dances, mining and logging skill contests, U. S. Army battle maneuvers in Memorial Park, outdoor church services on Sunday July 6, a beauty contest, and a host of other exciting events and programmed fun.

John Colling reported he had secured from 6th Army headquarters a promise of a 70-man unit including a band to march and play in the parade and a 3 squad combat team to demonstrate latest equipment and combat tactics.

Stinson related in detail the method of financing the celebration. This includes: (1) membeships in the 49er Association, at $1 per card (2) advertisements in the souvenir program, a jumbo edition full of western color (3) sales of the program. The general chairman emphasized [illegible] to Fourth funds his money's worth. No solicitation for donations will be made.

To facilitate distribution of 49er Association membership cards, William Durbrow suggested that small placards be printed for display in business houses. The cards would state that membership tickets were available there.

Possible use of Stewart Street as a truck route was discussed. Dr. Hirsch complained that noise of the trucks was an unbearable 24 hour nuisance in the vicinity of the Community Hospital.

At the request of Joel Bierwagen, the chamber's farm committee chairman, the group went on record as favoraing passage of AB 2082, a bill purporting to make possible for this county an $80,000 agricultural center structure.

Veterans' News

Facilities for the rehabilitation and readjustment of veterans who lost their hearing in the service have recently been expanded by the San Francisco Regional office of the Veterans Administration.

There are approximately 1200 hard of hearing veterans in Northern California whose disabilities were incurred in the service.

Every effort is made by the VA Special Rehabilitation Procedures Unit, Education and Training section, to aid the hard of hearing in his adjustment to a normal business and social life.

Veterane whose hearing is only partially impaired are equipped with special hearing aids. A special study is made of the veterans case history, background, education and experience in order to help place him in a job that will not irritate or aggravate his disability and where his disability will not be a hindrance.

For those veterans who are totally deafened and hearing aids are of little or no use, the VA has made arrangements for special lip reading and voice correction classes.

Hard of hearing veterans may take lip reading lessons from the American ociety for the Hard of Hearing, and the speech correction course is conducted by the Northern Section of the California Society for the Study of Speech Therapy.

The Speech Therapy society will conduct evening classes for veterans who are working. It is not necessary that hard of hearing veterans be enrolled in school or job training under the rehabilitatio act in order to take advantage of the speech correction or lip reading services.

Veterans in need of the speech correction and lip reading services are urged to utilize them as soon as possible because the sooner the training is started the more effective it will be, training officers pointed out

Army Air Forces Chief Latest Demo VP Rumor

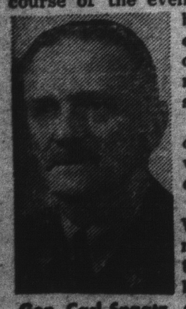
Has Taft Grip on Senate Weakened Since January?

Special to Central Press

● WASHINGTON—Latest speculative possibility as a vice presidential nominee, to be run by the Democrats on their Truman ticket in 1948, is Gen. Carl Spaatz, chief of the Army Air Forces.

The rumor got started at the annual Jefferson Day dinner at Washington's Mayflower hotel where 2,000 loyal and well-heeled Democrats paid $100 apiece to dine and hear the president speak.

Spaatz and Mr. Truman did not sit far apart, and during the course of the evening they frequently conversed. This led to the behind-the-scenes speculation among correspondents and amateur politicos that the Democrats could do a lot worse than name Spaatz as Truman's running mate if they want to carry Pennsylvania next year.



Gen. Carl Spaatz

The general is the first military man to be discussed as a vice presidential nominee in a wide-open race, which probably will not be decided until the Chicago convention.

Others are Navy Secretary James Forrestal, War Secretary Robert Patterson, Commerce Secretary W. Averill Harriman and Interior Secretary J. A. Krug—the latter before he was raked by the big verbal guns of John L. Lewis in connection with the Centralia, Ill., mine disaster.

● POLITICAL OBSERVERS ARE WONDERING just how secure the reportedly high-powered political organization of Senator Robert Taft (R), Ohio, really is, and whether it will be able to deliver the goods when the GOP national convention meets next year.

Capitol Hill observers, keeping a chart on the Ohioan's activities since Jan. 3, have come up with some facts indicating that his grip on the Senate already appears to be loosening.

They say he got the worst of a compromise on national debt reduction with Senator William F. Knowland (R), California, a Senate freshman. On the reciprocal trade agreements, Senators Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan and Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado took the GOP leadership.

* * * *

● ONE MUST BE ACQUAINTED with Senate tradition to understand why atomic committee senators allowed a non-committee member, Senator Kenneth McKellar (D), Tennessee, to force them to listen, week after week, to his prolonged battle against David E. Lilienthal.

Chairman Burke Hickenlooper (R), Iowa, frequently displayed his annoyance over McKellar's tactics. Other members were also irked.

However, it was not until hearings on Lilienthal's appointment went into its sixth week that the atomic senators agreed to silence McKellar's inquiry. Here is the explanation:

1—A committee, as Hickenlooper explained, is a "convenient arm of the Senate." It merely facilitates getting information for the Senate as a whole. Thus, a non-committee senator may participate in any hearing in which he is interested.

2—The Senate is zealous about maintaing full freedom of debate and expression, and that goes also to the freedom of producing evidence on which to debate. Senators boast that their body is the world's only remaining legislative forum for untrammeled debate.

Senate's Courtesy To Senators

So, had the committee cut McKellar's questioning short, it would have been accused on the Senate floor of breaking Senate tradition, of gagging a colleague, of breaching senatorial etiquette and courtesy.

Above all, the committee wanted to be, as Hickenlooper put it to newsmen, "uncriticizable" on that point.

* * * *

● DELEGATES TAKING OFF from the United States for the Geneva conference to establish an international world trade organization felt that it was "touch and go" on whether anything will come out of the important meeting.

Top officials pretended to have every confidence that some sort of agreement would be reached, but privately they were less optimistic.

In their efforts to impress the importance of the conference on Congress and the people they encountered strong competition for public attention in the debate on the Greco-Turkish aid bill. Russia's failure so far to indicate a willingness to share in world trade agreements adds to the problem.

Pent-Up Anger Isn't Good For Either Mother or Child

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS Ph D

MANY a mother spends hours and hours a day being mad at the youngster. Usually the reason is that she has not worked out an effective mode of controlling him. By all means she should find a way to settle matters and shut up, and be able to be happy with the child.

A mother writes: "I have three children—two boys 6 and 7, and a girl 9. The boys mind me quite well but their sister talks back and is always arguing when I ask her to do anything at all, like making her bed. Last night she was very sassy when we had company and I finally sent her to bed. But then it happens again next time. What is a good punishment for her? I have spanked her and slapped her face (which I dislike to do) but I do not always control myself.

"My husband insists I should punish the children when they are naughty to me, and he'll punish them when they are naughty to him, but I feel he should back me up and if he is there at the time he should punish them.

"I am the type that usually gives in rather than have an argument, but I do lose my temper."

When Child Disobeys

Virtually, here was my answer. When your child disobeys you, you should discipline him yourself and not expect Daddy to do it. Otherwise, you weaken your control over your children. Of course, the child should know each parent has the moral support of the other in any discipline problem.

Your trouble is that you talk and wait and argue until you and that girl get all worked up and angry, when you are unfit to punish and she unfit to profit from punishment. Quit arguing. Don't talk back. Then the girl won't, by and by.

When you make a command make it clearly and calmly. If it is not obeyed promptly apply effective punishment. Don't slap that child's mouth. That is too dangerous.

When you are sure she needs punishment sentence her to sit in a chair where you can see her without amusement for exactly 5 minutes. Go about your business, but if she moves from the chair before the time is up, seize her and spank her soundly enough so that she hardly will venture to leave the chair too soon again; certainly after two or three such experiences she won't.

The Boy Six

For the boy six make the chair-sentence 25 minutes, for the boy seven, 35 minutes. Hew rigidly to this single mode of punishment. Then you will never have occasion to resort to corporal punishment except when the child deliberately chooses it.

Assign to each child a few definite jobs to be done daily at a regular time. Don't warn or threaten. Name the reasonable time the job shall be finished. Sentence to the chair for each delinquency. This is so much more humane than jawing; and should bring the desired results. When, however, you request a child to do a special job, let him choose whether to do it or not, just as if he were an adult. But when you make a command make it with finality. My special bulletin, "How To Teach Child To Help at Home," may be had in a stamped envelope. Try to find ways of having good times with those children, especially with your daughter. Be very generous with deserving praise.

SHOWS NERVOUSNESS

There are drivers fully aware of the evil of riding the clutch who are very careful never to stop at the traffic light with the car in gear, declares the National Automobile Club. Yet while waiting with the gears disengaged, many of these have a nervous habit of depressing the clutch pedal from time to time. The habit, like many others, can be formed with its victim entirely unaware of it.

GIVE YOURSELF A BREAK

Drivers with bad brakes don't often get good breaks in traffic, the California State Automobile Association points out. Keep your brakes adjusted and take it easy in traffic.

DRIVING IN GLARE

Slow down when driving into the glare of oncoming headlights, advises the Public Safety Department of the National Automobile Club. When driving visibility is impaired by glare even 25 mph. can be a dangerous clip.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder about this and that
And also these and those,
The mystery of a falling star,
The fragrance of a rose;
I wonder at the shimmering sand
Upon the desert's floor,
I wonder at the song of birds
And ocean's mighty roar.

"How can you find so many things to wonder about?" inquired a recent caller. The answer would be, that "the world is so full of a number of things," and as for the universe—the moon is a frontier and there are interrogation marks on every star.

I wish we could hear less of war and more of peace. A great demonstration of air power over a great city, may be intresting but far more constructive would be a demonstration which would stress the desirability of peace and the means by which it might be won.

A demonstration of our war potential should reveal the desirability of peace; but there are those who say, "we have the ships, the bombs and the manpower, why not use them?" These people may have little influence upon clear thinking humans, but the art of thinking is still in its infancy and there are certain undesirable reactions to war talk in the minds of those who have never really considered the horrors of armed conflict, and its utter futility as a means of settling mal-adjustments of human relationships.

We celebrated I Am An American week; just what did we mean by that. Each one of us considers himself a rather perfect work of nature's art, but just how many ingredients go into the making of a one hundred per cent American? We are all of emigrant stock, my ancestors came from one part of the world, yours from another; but an experienced physiologist looking into our faces could readily tell us how the line of descent was mixed and from whom we received our features and our facial contour. We might be surprised if we knew, so it is not safe to berate any man for his racial characteristics: for in so doing we might be casting aspersions upon our own ancient and revered ancestry.

Some one quite recently advised the boss of office, factory, or store to enter his place of business singing, In this way it was thought, he could impress his employees with his good will, good nature and good intentions.

I have been listening to a number of Mother Goose like songs with which national advertisers flood the air waves and I respectfully suggest this little jingle for the bosses singing debut.

"I'm a little prairie flower, growing wilder every hour;
You can't do a thing with me, I'm as wild as wild can be."

PROJECT FOR POLIO ROOM AT HOSPITAL GETS UNDER WAY

GRASS VALLEY: The Peardale Home Department has sponsored a project for adding a room for infantile paralysis victims to the county hospital. C. H. Barker, Nevada County chairman of the Infantile Paralysis Foundation approves the project.

Barker expressed the hope that other home departments and other organizations would join in raising funds for the purpose of providing emergency hospitalization for polio victims. He stated that last year the committee hunted far and wide for a hospital room for a local polio patient and finally found one in Fresno.

Establishing a room at the county hospital would probably mean providing the special equipment and if possible, the special nursing care for polio sufferers.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY PLANNING REGULAR FEATURE FOR NUGGET

The following letter from H. P. Davis offering a suggestion that a Nevada County Historical Society column appear weekly in a local newspaper, has been adopted by Robert Paine, Nevada City Publications Chairman for the Society.

The first of the Historical Societys columns, to be printed in the May 29th issue of this paper will briefly review the aims of the group and plans for their attainment.

Subsequent columns will feature items o historicfal interest, contributed by the people of this county, who have interesting stories of the early days to tell. Articles and suggestions for a title suitable to such a column are to be submitted to Robert Paine, 107½ Clark St., Nevada City.

Nevada City, California
May 20, 1947

Mrs. Doris Foley, President.
The Nevada County Historical Society,
538 Main Street,

Dear Mrs. Foley:

Largely because of the activities of your society, people are becoming increasingly aware of the importance of the preservation and recording for posterity of matters and effects pertaining to events of significance in the history of Nevada County.

Nevada City, as have all of the towns of our county, suffered many devastating fires. On March 11, 1851, a great fire laid waste to the business section of the town and in it was consumed county and city records as of that date. In the great fire of July 19, 1856, the most disastrous fire in the history of this county, practicaNy all of the records that had escaped previous destruction were lost.

While this town has suffered no generally destructive holocaust since 1863, many places of business and private residences have been destroyed by fire, and in their destruction, documents and other matters of historic value have been irretrievably lost.

We are now amply protected from a general conflagration by our adequately equipped, ably directed and efficiently manned fire department but fires in homes and places of business are inevitable and in such fires material of historical value may be destroyed.

From other causes than fire, records not properly protected are continually being lost, particularly such records as are now in possession of residents of this city who do not fully appreciate their historical value.

Many men and women yet living in this county have personal recollections of events, or of episodes of historical interest, or have vivid memories of tales of their ancestors, or of other "old timehs", bearing on the history of this county. Such mateial of inestimable historic value should, by all means, be recorded and preserved..

The Historical Society, while yet in its infancy, is an already constituted agency by which all of the matters above suggested may be cared for. The success of the initial showing of your exhibit has demonstrated the potential value of the society to this county and shown that you have already made excellent progress toward your ultimate aim—the establishment of a permanent historical museuf adequately equipped to secure by gift, loan or purchase, material of historical value and to properly exhibit and safeguard material..

This as you fully realize, will necessarily require a very considerable amount of additional preliminary work.

I have, at your request, drawn up some suggestions for the accomplishment of this preliminary work. These suggestions, if you approve them, will, as I understand it, be included in a program which will be given publicity in a special column in the Nevada City-Grass Valley Nugget that Harley Leete, Jr. has offered to provide.

Sincerely yours,
H. P. DAVIS.

GIRL SCOUTS WANT LAKE BOWMAN SITES

NEVADA CITY: The Tahoe National Forest has received applications from Sacramento Girl Scouts and Woodland Girl Scouts organizations for permanent summer camp sites on Rucker Lake. The sites are reached by way of the Bowman Lake road from Bear Valley.

Recently the Nevada Irigation District has constructed a new route that touches the site chosen by the Sacramento girls. Robert Basmann, administrative assistant to the supervisor of Tahoe Forest, yesterday said that a water line to serve the two camps is being installed and that work will proceed through the summer. The plans call for a main building with open air sleeping quarters, and swimming facilities.

Mrs. Adele Sturtivant, Mrs. Connie Noyes and Mrs. Gordon Vance of this city have discussed plans with the Sacramento Girl Scout council of establishing a camp for Nevada City and Gass Valley girls organizations.

PHEASANTS NOW COUNTED BY AIR

SACRAMENTO: Aerial pheasant counts, faster and more accurate than old fashioned "hiking" methods of game bird census, are facilitating game management studies in Sacramento Valley pheasant areas, according to Howard Twining, biologist in the Buea of Game Conservation, California Division of Fish and Game.

Pheasant counts from airplanes, Twining said because of their speed and accuacy, may hasten the time when a marginal cock-hen ratio can be established.

When and if further studies fix the marginal ratio between cock and hen pheasants, anything below the marginal figure would be considered as a sign of overshooting and hunting should be restricted in critical areas.

Twining said that seven experimental flights were made during January, February and March at elevations ranging from 100 to 150 hour. The flights yielded more and ...ter data in six test areas than ...mparable counts on foot.

In a comparative test in the Willows area, three men and a dog, working 18 man hours, counted 271 hens and 21 cocks. A plane census over the same ground, which utilized two man hours counted 306 hens and 32 cocks.

The point of vantage afforded from the planes, Twining said, permitted observers to view vast expanses and to witness distribution changes which occurred among the birds during February and March.

First the cocks dispersed over the wide breeding areas and lated the observers witnessed the breakup and dispersal of large flocks of hens.

Twining said the pheasants were not disturbed by the low flying plane and observers could readily determine whether the birds were hens or cocks.

Areas difficult to reach by foot or by car were quickly and easily covered by plane.

The best results were obtained by planes from sunrise to 8 a. m. In the early morning the birds stood comparatively still in exposed places, apparently unwilling to enter dew laden cover until the sun was strong and bright.

Plane surveys were continued until the latter part of March when vegetation had reachd such a height that accurate counting was difficult.

Additional data will be collected next fall, Twining indicated.

The hearing was the outgrowth of what police officers called some fist swinging on a downtown street corner and in the police station bullpen. They were released on a $100 bond each. The couple accused the police of having knocked down Diana. Her husband, a professional tennis star, asserted: "They (the police) hit me with a club." (International)

A WRONG IDEA

An old idea that is just as wrong as it ever was is that of driving at pressures lower than those recommended for the tires on the theory that it means better traction, declares National Automobile Club.

LOOKING AHEAD

BY GEORGE S. BENSON

President—Harding College Searcy, Arkansas

Why Is It Coming?

Many observers are of opinion now that the nation may expect a considerable business recession by August or September. It is expected that this recession will be reasonably severe and might last for six months. Some expect it to bring bankruptcy to a good many businesses that are weak financially, create unemployment, and maybe interrupt production seriously.

President Truman is so much alarmed that he is asking industry to reduce prices of commodities in order to help cushion the expected recession. Fears are that it might develop into a real depression. In view of our huge national debt and the fact that we must maintain a high national income, this prospect is rather serious. Naturally, we are asking ourselves: "Why must it come?"

Washington Fable

It is on the way because everything is entirely too high. Homes are too high, manufactured goods are too high, food is too high—everything is too high. People are refusing to pay the prices. They are going to continue to refuse until something is done about it. Now, why do not the industrialists just immediately lower prices until there would be no talk of depression?

That's impossible. Prices are regulated by costs. In manufacturing a price is charged that covers the cost. Big item in cost is usually labor, which averages 50 or 60 or 70%, and as much as 85%, of a finished article. Now the fable. When the war was over the President's Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Henry Wallace, recommended that in the automobile industry wages could go up 30%, without increasing the prices of automobiles at all.

Spiral Again

If that could have happened in the automobile industry, of course, it could have happened also in many other industries. Labor was encouraged to demand a 30% boost, which they were told should bring no price increases. The facts, however, were on the other side of the fence. After an 18½ cent increase was granted auto workers, and even before OPA died, automobile prices had to be increased an average of 22%. Other industries granted similar raises and prices went on moving upward.

Labor soon realized that it had lost all its gains in the higher costs of living. When we get far enough from the present problems to size them up more accurately and when a correct history is finally written, it will probably be explained that wage boosts in the fall and winter of 1945-46, more than any other one thing, were responsible for the inflated prices that followed. This is what now threatens to make depression inevitable.

If our government could have found in 1945 enough backbone for a firm stand against increases in wages and prices, urging instead a high productivity to get the nation back on its feet as quickly as possible, then the present feared depression would have been mere talk. But when the general inflationary rise in wages and a corresponding inflationary rise in prices came, all thinking people agreed that finally a depression would probably come. We may get back to a reasonable level that way, but even yet we could use a much better way, which this column will outline next week.

The Revolt of the Northern Tribes

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Kings 6:1, 7-14, 38; 11:26-14:31; I Chronicles 28:9-11.

A young man named Jeroboam was a trusted servant of Solomon, but one day Jeroboam, dressed in a new cloak, went out of Jerusalem and met Ahijah, the prophet, and he tore Jeroboam's new garment into 12 pieces, giving him 10, saying that after Solomon's death 10 tribes would make Jeroboam king and only two for Rehoboam, Solomon's son.

Solomon heard of this and sought to kill Jeroboam who fled to Egypt. After Solomon's death he returned and headed the congregation of Israel who went to Rehoboam to complain that Solomon had made their yoke heavy, and to ask that Rehoboam make it lighter and then they would faithfully serve him. Rehoboam asked for three days to consider.

Rehoboam consulted with the elders and wise men and they advised him to do as the people asked and they would be loyal to him. However, he also talked with his gay young companions and they told him to defy the people and tell them that he would make their burdens heavier, so the 10 tribes rebelled and made Jeroboam their king.

But Jeroboam, too, deserted the Lord and built images for his people to worship, so he was punished, for when his young son was ill he sent his wife secretly to the prophet to ask that he get well, but the prophet told her the child would die and the kingdom be broken up.

BY DON BURNS

Nine students of the Student Theatre of the Grass Valley high school traveled to Chico Saturday, May 17, to attend the first annual Chico State College drama festival and present "Happy Journey" by Thronton Wilder in the college Little Theater at 10 a. m. COOLING SYSTEM TIP

The motorist who keeps his car's cooling system in good condition free from leaks and the like, has one distinct advantage, according to the National Automobile Club. It is to found in the fact that scale collection in the system will be kept at a minimum. Every time water is added, the amount of scale is likely to be increased owing to impurities in the new supply of it.

GEORGIA KILLER NABBED IN YUBA CITY CAMP

YUBA CITY: Johnnie Trotter, alias James Hencley, 36 year old laborer Monday confessed he had escaped almost nine years ago from a Georgia chain gang, to which he had been sentenced for murder, according to Sutter County Sheriff G. W. Carpenter.

Carpenter said Trotter was arrested at Yuba City government camp May 3 "on a tip." He said Trotter had repeatedly denied he was the man sought by Georgia authorities.

Trotter's confession reportedly was made this morning after Carpenter said that the FBI had wired him that Trotter's fingerprints checked with those of the wanted man.

He had been sentenced for life to Calhoun county public works camp, Morgan, Ga., for the murder in 1931 of Jess Shirle a negro, Carpenter said.

A telegram from C. A. Williams, director, Georgia state board of corrections, stated: "The FBI advises John Trotte held by you identical with our Johnnie Totter. Extradition will be mailed your governor today." Carpenter said that as soon as Governor Warren signs the extradition papers, Georgit authorities will return Trotter to the south.
